

Sent via email on September 2, 2008.

Dear Ms. Walker,

You called me a few weeks ago to discuss some of your concerns about the Treasure Island project, which is especially relevant to you as a resident. Specifically, you were alarmed by the radiation warning signs you have seen on the island. I spoke with you briefly about the cleanup activities in that area of the base (Site 12) and told you that I would try to get some information together to give you an idea of the risks associated with contamination levels that have been detected in that area. I am still working on that task as the information is preliminary and the risk assessment is not yet complete. I also let you know that the Navy would provide a project update at the public meeting (RAB meeting) on Aug 19. Were you able to attend?

After speaking with you, I communicated your concerns to Jim Sullivan from the Navy (the Treasure Island BRAC Environmental Coordinator). He informed me that he had also spoken with you. I wanted to check in with you to make sure your concerns were addressed. Was he able to answer your questions and provide you with sufficient information? We are having a project meeting next week (the first since your call). I plan to request some information about the topics we discussed from the Navy - perhaps in the form of power point presentations. Would that be helpful?

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have further questions.

Sincerely,

Christine Katin
U.S. EPA, Region 9
San Francisco, CA
(415) 972-3112